Overview

Angela Crawford has represented a variety of clients in matters involving the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA), global ethics and compliance, and internal investigations. She has advised clients in a number of sectors, including life sciences, food and beverage, retail, technology, education, and media and entertainment.

She regularly conducts investigations for public and private entities based on allegations of compliance and regulatory violations, corruption, bribery, fraud, and employee and third-party misconduct, and advises clients on the development, implementation, and enhancement of compliance programs, policies, and training. Angela has led investigations, compliance reviews, risk assessments, and trainings in over 20 countries around the world.

After serving as a partner for a decade at DLA Piper, one of the world's largest law firms, Angela co-founded Crawford & Acharya.

A former federal prosecutor, Angela is admitted to practice in Florida and Illinois. She is committed to community service and serves as a member of the Northwestern University Law School Law School Fund Board, the Law 360 Compliance Editorial Advisory Board, the First United Methodist Church of Miami Finance Committee, and People Acting for Community Together. Her interests include international travel, entrepreneurship, dogs, and Muay Thai.
